King's Legacy

Is the dream alive in Hancock County?

Hancock County will join the rest of the nation tomorrow in celebrating the life and achievements of famed civil rights leader, the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Local high school students say they feel unhindered by racism of the past

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER

On Monday, many citizens will celebrate a holiday honoring deceased civil rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King. It is a day for African-Americans to remember and honor the sacrifices of those who came before and to rededicate themselves to continue the struggle.

King was an advocate of active nonviolence, urging followers to use sit-ins and protest marches to further their cause.

He was a clergyman by profession and became famous for leading a black bus boycott in Montgomery, Al., causing the bus company to drop its policy of segregation.

In 1963, King led a march on Washington D.C., where he delivered his now famous speech, "I Have A Dream."

King's dream was for everyone in America to attain equal justice, and though King himself was assassinated on the balcony of a Memphis hotel, he never

Stanislaus bus barn fizzles at P&Z meet

School officials surprised by neighbors' objections to transportation garage

BY MARY G. SEILEY
Staff Writer

St. Stanislaus College officials struck out Wednesday when they pitched a plan to build a bus garage on a ball field at Union and Hancock streets.

The Bay St. Louis Planning and Zoning Commission voted 4-1 against the proposal, sending its negative recommendation to City Council for action at a Jan. 29 meeting.

Before the vote, some residents in the immediate neighborhood voiced strong opposition to the prep school's plan, saying it would only worsen what some said is already a sour relationship. Traffic, bus fumes, noise and a fuel storage facility were all cited as concerns.

Brother Roland Talbot, St. Stanislaus president, said Friday that the school will press its case to City Council. The concerns voiced at the meeting, he said, came from a "relatively few" neighbors who "greatly overstated" potential problems with the facility.

School officials said the new "transportation garage" would claim 5,600 square feet, with an open, prefabricated

Parents ask Hancock bd. to reconsider '6/10' policy

Say rural kids could face wild dogs & pedophiles

BY GEOFF BELCHER

Hancock County's children, at least those living in more rural areas, apparently face some big challenges - including maniac drivers, wild dogs and pedophiles.

That's what members of the Hancock County School Board were told Thursday night during a public hearing at Hancock High School, when about 25 parents showed up to plead with them not to enact the new so-called "six-tenths" transportation policy.

The policy has been a source of contention since the beginning of the 2001-2002 school year last August, when the board enacted it briefly - against the wishes of board members Larry

Banks for the memories: Heitzmann reflects on life and career

BY ED LEPOMA
Staff Writer

Friends and family gathered at Hancock Bank's main branch on Beach Boulevard Thursday evening to congratulate longtime manager Jerry D. Heitzmann on his approaching retirement.

As usual, Heitzmann enjoyed all the attention, sometimes cracking jokes as he worked his way through the crowd, and always greeting well wishers with a firm handshake and a square look in the eyes, his trademark way of relating to each individual, he really cares.

Heitzmann, 55, officially closes out his stellar banking career of 18 years on Jan. 25, and was the honored guest Thursday evening of the after hours open house hosted at the bank by the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce.

Earlier, he sat with the Echo to reflect on his "wayward past," (his own words). No questions were off-limit in the interview, but he asked, "Make it humorous."

Heitzmann is the war baby of Carl G. Heitzmann and Velma Zengaring, born in Bay St. Louis after World War II on Oct. 15, 1946. He was brought into this world by Dr. M.J. Wolfe, "like everybody else in Bay St. Louis." Brothers Carl and Raymond followed.

Heitzmann is the first to admit he was a class clown, going through elementary school, the first three years at St. Joseph Academy. "They thought I was a girl," he jokes. (Not really, St. Joseph was coed back then).

After third grade, Heitzmann entered St.

Jerry Heitzmann, right, with renowned historian, author and Bay St. Louis-resident Dr. Stephen Ambrose, at Heitzmann's retirement party at Hancock Bank's Bay Main branch on Thursday afternoon.

Stanislaus, where he had frequent run-ins with the no-nonsense brothers of the Sacred Heart and graduated in 1964, "by the skin of my teeth."

"I participated in track, and played in the band, but mostly I stayed in trouble," he says.

From there, Heitzmann would begin a less-than-illustrious college start at Pearl River Junior College.

"The first time I majored in Bogalusa," (partying) he recalled. He was kicked out in nine weeks.

He tried again in 1966. "This time I majored in recess," he said. He flunked out in nine weeks.

His third try at Pearl River proved to be the charm, and Heitzmann gives the credit to his wife of now-going-on 31 years. He married Debra Weidman, whom he dated three or four years "between my various escapades."

Heitzmann went on the graduate from Pearl River "with honors" in 1970.

"She convinced me, behind every successful man is a mean wife," said Heitzmann.

After college, Heitzmann tried his hand at construction. He was hired as part of the crew driving pilings for the railroad bridge going through downtown Bay St. Louis. The crew worked in sub-freezing temperatures from December through February.

"I soon found out that me and manual labor were not cut out for each other," said Heitzmann.

Heitzmann entered the University of Southern Mississippi, majoring in Criminal Justice, and graduated again with honors in 1972.

He and his bride moved up to Jackson when he landed a job with the Jackson Police Department, serving as a patrolman and a training officer at the Police Academy.

After three years, Heitzmann accepted a state job with the Mississippi Department of Corrections, first serving as a parole officer in Biloxi in Harrison County. Before ending eight years of service with corrections, Heitzmann had worked himself up to become district supervisor over the entire Gulf Coast territory.

Heitzmann turned his attention back to Hancock County in 1982 when a scandal forced the elected circuit court clerk to resign with one year left in his term.

It was the first time Heitzmann ran for public office, but he won handily, beating out a large field of better known candidates.

He served one year, then decided not to run for a full term. "But, one of the best things I did was to hire Pam Metzler as my chief deputy," said Heitzmann. Metzler is now in her fourth consecutive term as Circuit Clerk.

Heitzmann said he joined Hancock Bank as a teller at the main branch on Jan. 18, 1984 at the urging of James Ginn, manager of Hancock's Hwy. 90 branch office.

"He convinced me a career in banking would be more stable than life in the political world," said Heitzmann. "And, I never looked back."

The reminiscing took Heitzmann back to his longtime friend and cousin, Dusty Rhodes, now president of the local Whitney Bank.

"I used to look at him sitting behind his desk and I used to feel so sorry for him, thinking to myself what a boring job that must be," said Heitzmann, who became manager of Hancock's main branch in 1988. (He's also a bank vice president).

"I soon learned banking was a challenge and was a wonderful opportunity for me," said Heitzmann.

Heitzmann hasn't ruled out anything in the future, including a run at being a stand-up comic. He is a much sought-after speaker at the Rotary Club and for other functions.

"I might apply for the position of greeter at Wal-Mart," said Heitzmann. "That has to be the ultimate job, in my mind. You've got little responsibility. I'd get to meet everybody I know coming through the store, and I'll get my exercise going outside to retrieve the shopping carts."

Getting serious, Heitzmann said he plans to take it easy the next few months "to catch up on my list of honey-dos the wife has prepared for me." He'll also spend more time with his three grown children, Kristy, David and Julie.

After that, Heitzmann said he plans to seek some type of part-time work within the community, and he has not ruled out another run for political office.

Heitzmann did not want to end the interview without "thanking my family, the management of Hancock bank and the public for the wonderful opportunity they have given me to serve in the capacity I have for the last 18 years."

"It's been a wonderful ride," he said.

Trailer park ban has no opponents

BY ED LEPOMA
Staff Writer

A plan to eliminate trailer parks in a small portion of Hancock County and control where others may locate drew no opposition Thursday.

The Hancock County Planning and Zoning Commission advertised in advance it planned to hold a public hearing on the proposed text change to the county's Comprehensive Zoning Ordinance. But, only one citizen came to the hearing Thursday afternoon, and she supported the plans.

All five commissioners were present for the hearing, but they took the proposal "under advisement," without passing or rejecting it.

Willie Gavney, the county's chief building inspector and zoning enforcement officer, later said commissioners want to wait on a transcript taken by a court reporter who attended the hearing before acting. "After that, they can take action, then send the entire record over to the Board of Supervisors for their consideration," said Gavney.

The amendment would ban mobile home parks altogether in a small area of the county zoned "R-2A-Medium Density Residential." This would affect Avenue A and B in Shoreline Park and a small area off Harbor Drive between Tombigbee and Hwy. 603.

Zoning consultant Bill Hessel told commissioners the area where the ban would be in effect represented less than one percent of the total land area of Hancock County.

He said single-family homes are being developed in the area, "and it needs better protection."

Hessel said the potential for a trailer park to locate in the areas was already pretty limited because the present zoning code requires a minimum of five acres for a trailer park, and most of the remaining land is in small lots and not likely to be combined to make five acres.

"You can still place a trailer on individual lots in those areas," said Hessel. "But, there is no need for a trailer park."

Hessel also recommended requiring developers to come before the Planning Commission to seek "conditional approval" before locating a trailer park in areas zoned "C-2, Highway Commercial," "R-3, Multifamily Residential," and "C-1, Neighborhood Commercial."

The Planning Commission had proposed to allow trailer parks "by right," in the "C-2 Districts, which would not require a public hearing or approval by the Planning Commission, but Hessel advised commissioners not to allow any trailer parks "by right."

Hessel told commissioners any trailer park is "a high density development and should be reviewed on a case-by-case basis" no matter where it wants to locate.

He said commissioners need to gauge the impact any trailer park would have on existing and emerging neighborhoods.

"I'm not saying they can't exist, but you need to look at public safety, the public access, the utilities needed to serve the area, and others items, just as you look at a subdivision," said Hessel.

Lynn Bell, president of the Garden Island Civic Association, spoke in favor of the ban and the conditional restrictions.

She applauded "the Commission's efforts to more clearly define where trailer parks can locate in the county." She claimed trailers in her neighborhood "has decreased the value of my own home."

Bell claimed mobile home manufacturers and sellers do not have the county or a neighborhood's interest in mind.

"They're not interested in Hancock County. They just want to make money and run off to the next sale," she said.

Supercenter controversy continues in Waveland; and aldermen pave the way for new narcotics task force

BY GEOFF BELCHER
News Editor

When it rains, it pours – at least, that's the common fear of about 40 people who brought their concerns about the proposed Wal-Mart Supercenter project to the Waveland Board of Aldermen Wednesday night. "Obviously, there are concerns about the Wal-Mart drainage plan," Bruce Northridge told aldermen Wednesday. Northridge – one of nearly a dozen people who said they were worried the proposed supercenter will damage the environment – said he became worried about the plan after being contacted by Picayune resident Kathlyn "Chickie" Knox.

Knox owns wetlands property in Waveland adjacent to the site where the proposed Wal-Mart Supercenter is supposed to be built.

At the board's first meeting of the month, Knox shared her concerns with aldermen and Mayor Tommy Longo.

"My concern has been going on since last March," Knox told aldermen at their Jan. 2 meeting. "I received a notice from the Corps of Engineers ... (that Wal-Mart had petitioned to) fill in approximately 20 acres of wetlands."

"The more I looked into it, the more I realized the graveness of it."

Knox said she had hired the Ocean Springs-based Wetlands Inc., an environmental firm, to look at her property and advise her on how the Wal-Mart construction would affect it.

In a letter to the Echo, Knox said "The site is in the Edwards Bayou Watershed, which flows into the Bay of St. Louis. Destruction of these wetlands and from parking lot run-off will cause flooding in this already overloaded bayou. Edwards Bayou is on the List of Impaired Waterbodies. Storm water contamination from parking lot oils, traffic concentration and the proposed gas station leads to contamination."

"Wal-Mart has offered wetland mitigation, where a number of acres in a different location (in this case, the Buffer Zone of Devils Swamp) will be turned into a 'wetland.' There is no way on God's green Earth creating a wetland 20 miles away can replace the function that these wetlands serve and do naturally now."

"As far as runoff goes," Longo told the crowd Wednesday, "we have extremely strict codes in the city of Waveland – they're actually above the minimum, or above what is average. ... There are things that we started enforcing in the city way before it had to be, but it was good for the environment."

Longo said there are two retention ponds in the Wal-Mart plan intended to catch the added runoff, and keep additional contaminants from flowing straight into Edwards Bayou, adding that the company has included 28 acres of the property to preserve as a nature conservancy. He said the city has done and will continue to do everything possible to continue to protect Waveland's environment.

"We're very fortunate to live in ... just about the most gorgeous place on earth," Longo said, "and we (the board and I) are aware of that."

Several people at Wednesday's meeting spoke of the pristine beauty of the wetlands area, and said they feared that Wal-Mart's plans to fill in several wetland acres would "destroy our way of life."

One man said he also distrusts the Department of Environmental Quality, which is supposed to protect wetlands. "The DEQ has no credibility whatsoever ...," he said. "That water (in Edwards Bayou) is not clean. It is full of raw sewage."

Longo and aldermen again stressed that none of them were engineers – and again asked Knox to provide her reports to them so they could go through the information and get the appropriate answers to environmental concerns.

"You're asking us questions tonight that we have no answer to," Alderman Milton Bernard said.

"I don't want to hurt nobody," Chickie ... Alderman Louie Smolensky said. "This board wants to find out the answers, too. We wanna be right and we wanna be just."

"We asked Miss Chickie to bring any information she had so we could study it," Longo said, but unfortunately, she had not yet done so.

Knox promised to provide the information.

"We all obviously love this area," Longo said, "so I think we're all on the same team."

In other action Wednesday:

• The board officially hired city attorney Zack Butterworth, who is replacing Ronnie Artigues. Artigues said he "regretfully" submitted his resignation since he has been tapped to be the new county attorney, replacing Gerald Gex, who has retired.

"I think Ronnie is one of the sharpest legal minds we've got on the Coast," Bernard said, "if not in the state, and I think Waveland's loss is the county's gain."

Bernard then questioned Longo's appointment of Butterworth to the position, saying he believed that under the city charter, the board had to approve filling the vacancy. As a matter of course, the board then unanimously voted to hire Butterworth.

Bernard said he didn't have a problem with Butterworth, "I just think we should operate according to the city charter."

• The board approved payment to Bond Paving Co. for the street paving project, and then approved purchasing a bond on the project to protect the city in case of problems.

Bernard questioned why they bond had not been secured to begin with by the company that's doing the paving.

He asked why no one had brought it to the board's attention before.

"It seems like somebody's gotta be held responsible," Bernard said.

"Milton, it was brought to you in executive session (months ago)," Longo said. "It was brought up to you in open discussion."

Purchasing agent Raquel Lafontaine said she had told Bond Paving it needed to secure a performance bond before the paving began, but the companies representatives informed her they had already worked out the details with public works director Ray Eaton and didn't need a performance bond. Lafontaine said she then informed the board, and that Bernard had been plainly told several times before that the bond was not in place and needed to be in order to protect the city.

"You've been advised," Artigues said. "You were advised a long time ago. You didn't want to hear it then, you don't want to hear it now, but I've been consistent."

The board approved purchase of the bond but, at Artigues' suggestion, reserved the right to pay the approximate $3,600 cost of the performance bond out of the contractor's fee.

• Aldermen approved an interlocal agreement between Waveland and the city of Bay St. Louis to create a new narcotics task force.

The old task force, made up of law enforcement officials from the two cities and the Hancock County Sheriff's Department, disbanded at the end of 2001. Sheriff Steve Garber has already created a new county task force. Bay St. Louis City Council will consider approving the interlocal agreement for the new Bay-Waveland task force at its regular meeting this week.

Policy -- parents concerned

Peterson and Bennett most dangerous times and places for our children. It's before putting it on hold after an onslaught of parental complaints.

According to the new policy, "Buses shall not leave the main route unless: The stop is six-tenths of a mile or more off the main route and the road is safe and properly maintained."

Previously, the board went up to three-tenths of a mile off the main route. In other words, a lot more kids in rural areas now have to walk more than a half-mile to a common bus stop.

Board President Cheryl Bennett reiterated Thursday night that according to the policy, "The bus shall pick up and/or drop off students as close to their home as possible if it is raining or below 40 degrees." Also according to the policy, buses will travel further off the main route if a pupil has a physical or mental disability. The board actually approved the policy at the end of the 2000-2001 school year, in response to a request from then-Transportation Director Lynn Payne forwarded to them by Superintendent for Education Mike Ladner.

Aside from some saving the district money, "This will also allow us to reduce the time that most students spend on the buses," Payne wrote. "By reducing the number of turn-arounds, starts and stops that we have, we will reduce the time that students are in the danger zone of buses, as these are considered the

"Having buses making pick-ups on private roads creates many problems. Several of the roads are so rough that they are causing excessive wear on the buses and are creating an extremely rough ride for the students. This has caused many students to arrive at school feeling ill."

Bennett stressed several times Thursday that the intent of the policy was to benefit Hancock's children by keeping them as safe as possible, while still reducing the hours some spend on the buses each day traveling to and from school. The time spent on the buses has increased inordinately in the past few years with the huge population growth, she said, requiring many more bus stops. She also pointed out that state law allows students to walk up to a full mile to a consolidated bus stop.

Still, parents said Thursday, they want the board to find a better way. "The way I see it," Tony Ladner told board members, "the solution is not six-tenths, it's having enough buses."

Bennett said the district had recently purchased 20 new buses, but most of them were used to replace buses that were too old to use.

"Right now," Lisa Ladner, a parent from Ansley, told board members, "the bus is stopping right in front of my house – I know he (my son) is safe. ... When he's dropped off six-tenths of a mile from my house, how will I know he's safe?"

"You said you considered safety," Elaine Ainsworth said. "How can this be when you're taking small children and you're making them walk six-tenths of a mile in a rural area. Have you considered wild animals?"

"I'd like you to know the fear that you would truly feel when one of these wild dogs come running after you. And not only the wild dogs, what about the pedophiles?"

"Over 50,000 kids a year are missing in this country. Are you willing to be part of that? ... I really, truly feel that when you do this, you are going to swing the door open for these pedophiles."

Ainsworth said that she and most other Hancock County taxpayers would be willing to pay a little more in taxes in order to help find a better solution to the problem.

"If one of my grandchildren are abducted," she asked, "who is gonna stand responsible for it?"

Many are awaiting the arrival of the NASA International Space Station at the I-10 Launch Pad on January 30. The full-size mock-up of the International Space Station will make its first nationwide tour stop, when it lands at the Hancock County I-10 Welcome Center.

The exhibit, sponsored by the Johnson Space Center and hosted by Stennis Space Center, will be open to the public from 9 to 5 daily. Admission is free! The last day of the tour is February 7, as the International Space Station will move on to its next location. This is an opportunity to view what life is like for the astronauts living aboard the real International Space Station, orbiting 240 miles above the earth.

Inside the exhibit's two 48-foot trailers, you'll be greeted by life-sized animated "Astronaut Emily" and see how astronauts eat, work and sleep in zero gravity.

This is really a great opportunity for us all to get a first hand view of life on a space station. I am sure many youngsters, as well as us oldsters, will not want to miss this great opportunity, so mark your calendars. Get your friends together and make it a festive event.

While on the subject of space, the good news too, is the re-opening of the StenniSphere. Stennis Space Center's award-winning visitors center, on Monday, January 28.

The visitor's center had been closed to the general public since the September 11 terrorist attack, and only began accepting school groups in November.

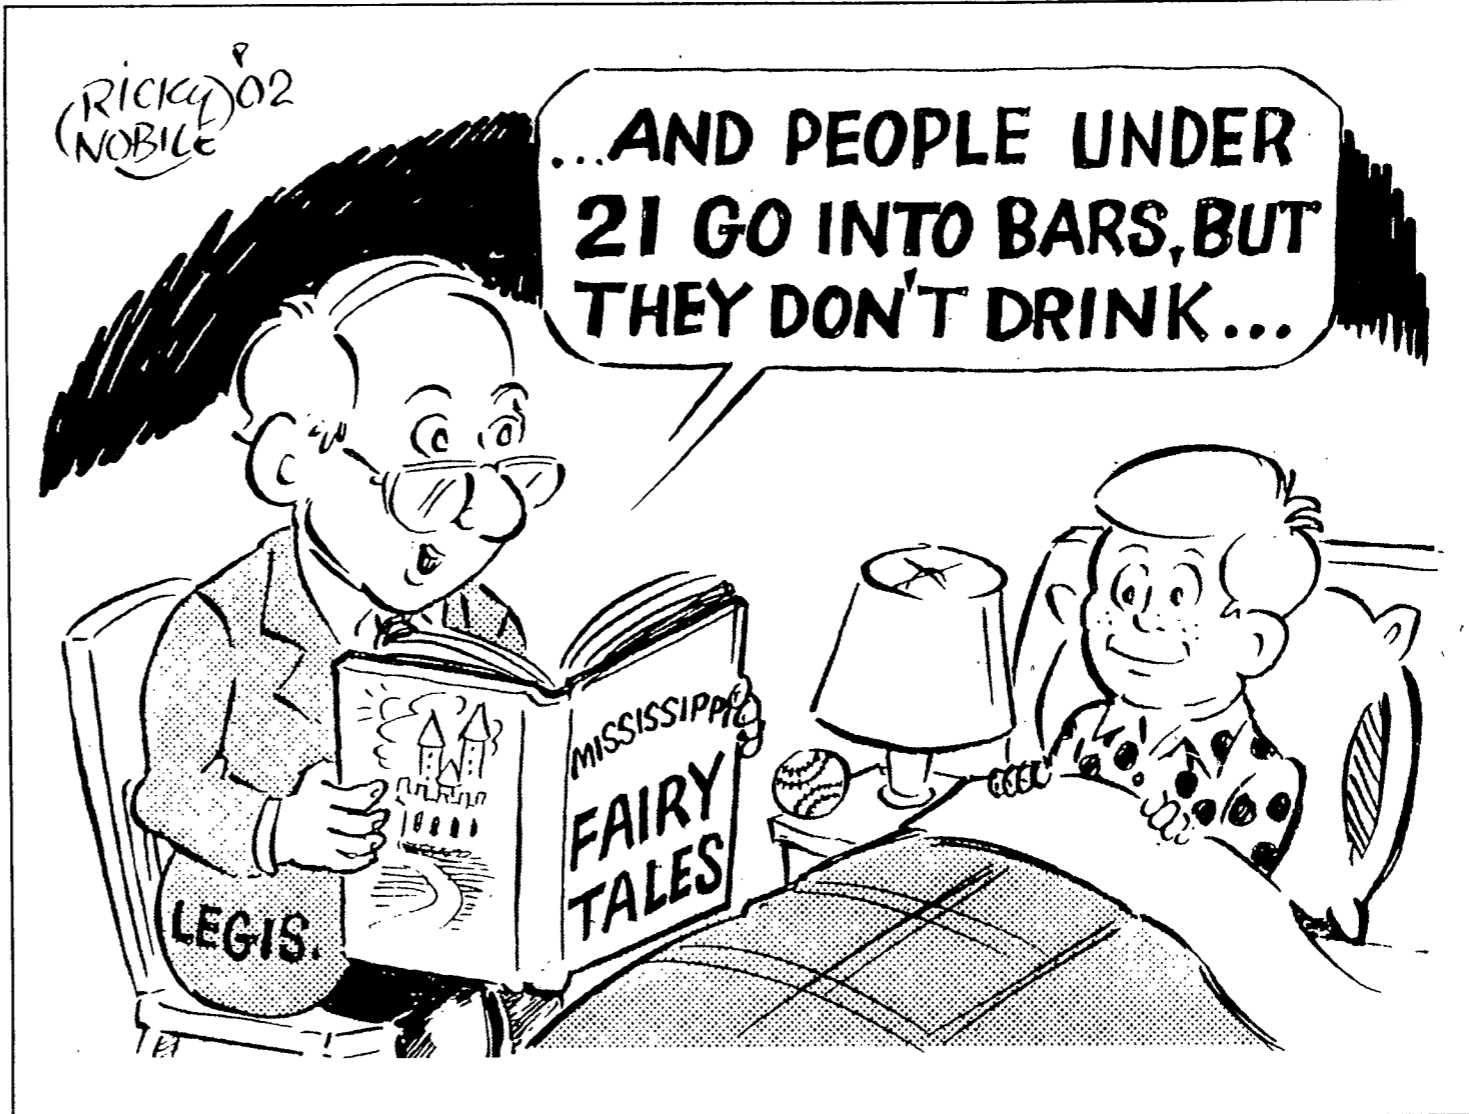

Visitors begin their tour at the Launch Pad located at the Hancock County I-10 Welcome Center, where they board a shuttle bus for a guided tour of America's largest rocket test complex.

Then its a tour of StenniSphere, where visitors can experience the all-new stage show, "Oh My Stars, We've Landed on Mars." The audience joins astronauts Cosmo and Dr. Halley Comet as they "crash land" on the surface of Mars, and conduct highly scientific and hilarious research.

The show is to be presented at 11 a.m. each day Monday through Friday.

Just to give you an idea of how popular the StenniSphere has been, some 340,000 visitors have visited the NASA visitors center since its opening in May of 2000. In February 2001, StenniSphere received the Mississippi Tourism Bureau's Travel Attraction of the Year honor. The visitors center includes 14,000 square feet of interactive exhibits, which, along with outdoor rockets, engines, buoys, and aircraft, reflect the history and mission of Stennis Space Center and its area. For information, or to book group tours, call 1-800-237-1821, (Option 1) in Mississippi and Louisiana, or visit the website at www.ssc.nasa.gov.

Against strip searches in Hancock County schools

To the Editor:

To begin I think that a lot of people in the superintendent's office have put a great deal of faith in an opinion from an assistant district attorney. Remember people, that's exactly what it is, an opinion.

Let us also look at the word "stringent." This word means severe and imposing rigorous standards of performance.

Now Mr. Ladner is quoted as saying, "Some school districts in the state have enacted more stringent methods, such as installing metal detectors in the schools and performing routine searches with drug-sniffing dogs."

I believe, and yes, this is my opinion, that it is a smarter way, not a more "stringent" way, of waging a war on drugs.

Reason being, a dog does not know what student is angry with another and who is related to whom. They strictly do their job with no bias.

Another question to Mr. Ladner is, who will be training the administrators to do this intrusive act, and what will it cost? Do teachers and administrators now want to be law enforcement also?

I think when Mr. Ladner stated to our district representatives that he wanted to wage a war against drugs, they might have appreciated a plan on how to go about it.

If his so-called leads are from other students, how can that be classified as suspicion? I would hope an investigation into the allegation would take precedent over one child's word.

Of course, if the student is in fact an undercover officer, then that is a different story. Once it has been deemed a necessity to search any person, an officer of the law should intervene and transport that individual to the proper office.

We can also have hair samples sent for analysis. Maybe Mr. Ladner could set the example and turn one of his in for the first test.

Mr. Ladner, why are you not concerned with the students seeking these drugs out also? If it is a war then complete the task as a whole. Are you not worried about a student becoming an addicted adult in our society?

In closing, I myself have seen how Mr. Ladner disrespects the district at meetings with his tit-for-tat attitude.

I watched with amusement as he went head to head with one of our representatives, and the only thing he managed to do was waste time.

Please bring in the dogs.

Sincerely,
Patrice St. Clair

Elected officials should defend our quality of life

To the Editor:

It is time for our elected officials to defend the quality of life in our area. I am writing about drainage. The City of Waveland is currently encouraging the Wal-Mart development to proceed in spite of serious concerns by property owners whose property has already been detrimentally affected by Wal-Mart-created runoff problems. The new Wal-Mart project will yield 543,000 gallons of water for each 1 inch of rainfall.

My comment is not so much about Wal-Mart as it is about local officials who cannot see past the newest possible tax dollar in the city coffers.

Development requires the municipality to provide superstructure for services needed including sewer, water and drainage.

Dumping the water onto the neighbor's yard is not sufficient. Calling some ditch Edwards Bayou, does not make it capable of handling the water. Of course there are water quality concerns for another time.

In case the City of Bay St. Louis officials are getting a chuckle out of this situation, let them consider their drainage project which takes the water from town, runs it under the highway into a swampy area which has one culvert exit under Beach Blvd. at Felicity Street.

By the way, let's encourage development all around the swampy area to decrease its size and increase its drainage demands.

Development is not just new tax dollars!

Sincerely,
Judy Reeves

Resident supports police action on Sycamore St.

To the Editor:

This is a reply to charges of police harassment on Sycamore Street in the Jan. 10 issue of the Echo.

There isn't any.

The high presence of police is the result of the street being blocked by people and cars, loud vulgar language and music, as well as reported shootings and stabbings.

I also feel there are other reasons why the police are there. As for the police parking on St. Francis, that's better than the crowd that's usually there. I'm behind our police fully.

Security tightened at State Capitol

The 2002 legislative session began last Tuesday as members joined hands and were led in the Lord's Prayer by representative Phillip West.

My fellow members are upbeat in anticipation of the session despite the $124 million shortfall in the state Medicaid budget caused by an influx of new enrollees and the rising cost of prescription drugs. During state agency budget hearings held in the fall of 2000, Medicaid leaders told a legislative panel that an increase in state funding would not be needed for this fiscal year.

However, when legislative budget leaders gathered in the fall of 2001 for the same hearings, they were informed of the need for the extra appropriation.

As with the overall state budget, Medicaid is not just a Mississippi problem. Today, it makes up about 13 percent of all state government spending across the nation, and Medicaid offices in numerous states are having to go back and ask legislatures for more funding. Medicaid began in 1965 as a joint state and federal program to provide health care coverage for the needy. Today, it's the nation's major public program providing care to low-income people and is the largest federal grant program.

The federal government spent about $207 billion nationally in federal FY 2000. Mississippi traditionally receives about $4 from the federal government for every $1 of state money it spends on the program.

Only six months ago the Capitol was a much different place. The public could come and go freely through any of the Capitol's eight entrances. Since the events of Sept. 11, 2001 that is only a memory of simpler times.

Today the public can only gain access to the building through two entrances which are heavily guarded and have metal detectors.

Visitors and employees are issued special badges. Lawmakers and staff are being issued swipe ID cards so they can use four additional entrances from the parking area. These entrances are also posted with a sentry.

Even before terrorists attacked the Pentagon and the World Trade Center, concern for additional security at the Capitol began growing last year when a disturbed man came into the Capitol shouting at guards, visitors and lawmakers. Although necessary, I am disappointed that we have to resort to these measures.

Rep. Dedeaux may be contacted at the State Capitol, (601) 359-3770 or P.O. Box 1018, Jackson MS 39215-1018.

Bus garage -- Stanislaus

metal structure located near the corner. The new facility, situated behind a fence, would replace the school's existing campus bus barn, making room for a new band hall, officials said.

The new bus facility is a small part of a $10 million expansion and renovation project that has been launched at the school. Workers currently are building a new fitness center next to the school's swimming pool and gymnasium on Bookter Street. Ultimately, the old gym will be turned into a fine arts center, and a new band hall will be next to it.

Brother Talbot said the various projects mandate relocation of the existing bus facility at the school, and there's no better place to put it than the Hancock site. School officials have no backup plan for locating its bus facilities if council rejects the proposal, he said.

But nearby residents were very opposed to the proposed site, and suggested it be placed outside the residential neighborhood.

Some homeowners also said their relationship with Stanislaus has deteriorated in recent years.

"There are so many reasons why this is a bad idea," said one, stressing an already-troubled traffic situation at the intersection of Union, and Hancock.

The Hancock Street resident said police have to be called regularly to remove illegally parked cars, and to deal with "vulgarity, obscenity and drinking" at the corner. "I have no confidence a new structure will be giving more consideration" to the neighborhood, he said.

"They are not good neighbors," said a Bookter street homeowner. One Union street homeowner, immediately adjacent to the site in question, said the proposed facility will "very much devalue my house."

And the owner of the nearby Palm House bed and breakfast on Union Street said the recently renovated inn should offer quaint ambiance, rather than a front porch view of a bus barn.

The negative reactions came from a standing-room-only crowd, but the audience included citizens interested in other matters on the agenda Wednesday.

Some appeared stunned and worried to learn that the proposed facility would include fuel storage capability — and that the existing bus barn on campus has fuel storage now.

City officials said Thursday it's legal to have a fuel storage facility in a residential neighborhood, providing all fire safety code regulations are met. Permits for such a facility would have to be obtained separately from the zoning variance being sought from the city, said Building Official Bill Carragee and Fire Chief Robert Gavagnie.

Commissioner chairman Tommy Chapman called twice Wednesday for a motion to deal with the zoning variance request, but there was none forthcoming. Finally, Chapman himself made a motion to recommend denial of the proposal, getting three other votes to reject it. Commissioner Hal Leftwich voted against the motion, saying the chairman of the commission can't make a motion.

City officials said later there's nothing to preclude the chairman from making a motion. The recommendation goes to City Council Jan. 29 for action.

Meanwhile, Brother Talbot said school officials had shown their plans to city officials several weeks ago, and were told there would be "no problem" with the construction program, and no conflict with the zoning ordinance. He said he was surprised, later, to find out the bus facility would require a special exception to the zoning ordinance, since it would be located in an R-3 residential zone.

And Brother Talbot said he was extremely surprised at the objections aired Wednesday night. Why would residents so near a train depot be concerned over the noise from a bus, he asked, for instance. He said the school has gone to great lengths to design the facility so it's compatible with the neighborhood. Entry to the facility will be limited to a driveway off Hancock, not in the intersection, he said.

He also said the school's existing fuel storage facility meets all local, state and federal permitting regulations, and the new one would as well. "As far as I can remember, we've been servicing cars here at St. Stanislaus," he added.

DMR pushing stiffer fines

BY ED LEPOMA
Staff Writer

The Mississippi Department of Marine Resources plans a push soon for stiffer fines for violating any fishing laws.

Lt. Col. David Rose, who supervises DMR's Marine Patrol units, reported at a meeting of the commission last week, it is disheartening to the morale of his division when Justice Court judges significantly reduce or suspend fines that can be levied against persons violating fishing regulations.

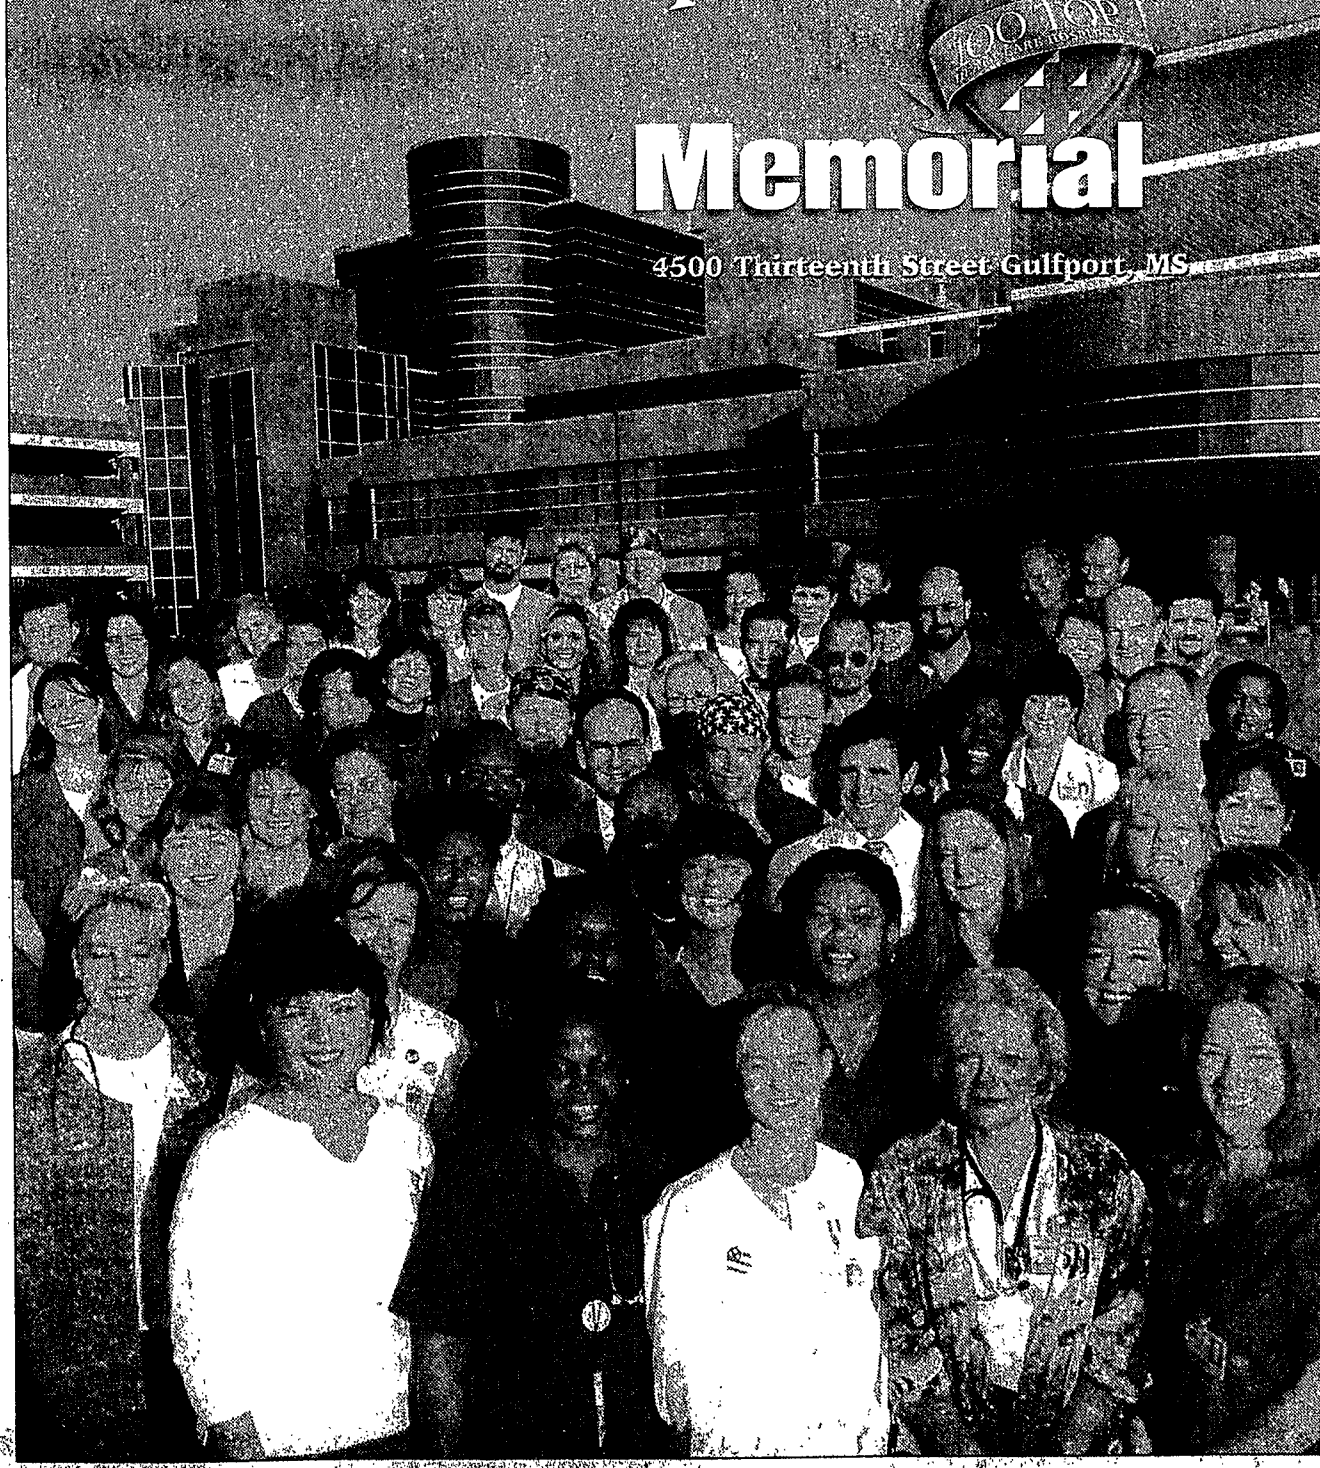

He said fishermen caught using illegal gill nets can be fined a maximum of $2,500, and some judges in Harrison County recently imposed maximum fines against violators, but judges in Hancock and Jackson County have sometimes lowered the fines to $100 or suspended the fines altogether.

Rose said illegal gill net fishing isn't as widespread in Hancock County as it is in Jackson County, "but the courts need to take all fishing violations seriously."

He said his Marine Patrol unit consists of 28 full-time officers, and the coastal shorelines are patrolled 24-hours-a-day, seven days-a-week. Each district includes 185 square miles of coastline, Rose said, and three officers using three boats patrol on the day shift.

W.S. "Corky" Perret, with the Marine Fisheries Division, suggested changing state law. He said commissioners should consider asking the state Legislature to make some gill net violations a felony, which would move the cases to circuit courts.

St. Paul Carnival Assn. selects king and queen

The St. Paul Carnival Association announced that Robert H. Bentz and Monica Ladner-Wittmann will reign as King Christian LXXII and Queen Christiana for the 2002 carnival season.

They have been involved with St. Paul Carnival Association for many years and are members of St. Paul Catholic Church.

Bentz is the son of the late Fred and Helen Bentz. He is married to the former Shelly Hyde of New Orleans and has two children, Lauren Elizabeth and Brett. Both children completed their elementary education at St. Paul School.

Lauren is a graduate of OLA and Brett attends St. Stanislaus. Bentz is currently the Parks and Recreation director for the City of Pass Christian.

His family has a rich history with St. Paul School dating back to its origin in 1876. He comes from a line of royalty including Leonard Bentz King Christian LXVI, Queen Christiana 1997 Sharon Bentz, and Queen Christiana 1999 Helen Bentz.

He is a member of Pass Christian Yacht Club and has also over the years been actively involved with youth athletics including coaching pee-wee football and baseball for several years.

Monica Ladner-Wittmann is married to Casey Wittmann of Pass Christian and is the daughter of Vernon and Mary Ladner of DeLisle.

Wittmann has been employed with Hancock Bank for 15 years and is currently a financial service officer in the Diamondhead office.

Monica Ladner-Wittmann and Robert H. Bentz

The Wittmann family has a long-standing history with St. Paul School. They have had 70 children attend St. Paul School through the years. Their heritage with St. Paul School dates back to its origin.

Sr. Bernadette, born Ann Wittmann, was one of the founding Sisters of Mercy that originated St. Joseph School, now St. Paul School, in 1876.

Ladner-Wittmann also comes from a long line of royalty including her father-in-law, Kenneth C. Wittmann, who reigned as King Christian IXV and Queen Christiana 1992 Julia Wittmann-Howard.

She is a member of the Diamondhead Business Professionals Mississippi

Make a Difference Day and is actively involved with Pass Christian High School football and baseball booster clubs.

Pass Christian has had a long and interesting Mardi Gras history. Many spontaneous parades took place early in the 1900's.

The first organized parade and recorded ball took place in 1915.

Tradition has it that in prior years the carnival krewe consisted of the town's young gentlemen.

When the royal court was chosen by lot from among them, certain men were chosen to act as the queen and her maids.

In 1915 this was changed at the last moment before the parade began. Ellen Courtney and Mrs. Ernest Bohn secretly took the place of the "chosen" Queen, Henry Roux.

Her majesty's "maids" were gentlemen, Mr. Bourdir and Mr. St. Amanat. Louis Martin was the 1915 king.

These balls and parades continued until the war. After the war there were parades, but there are no known records of them.

In the late 20's a member of the group began thinking towards reorganizing as a fund-raising event to benefit St. Joseph High school, now St. Paul and the Sisters of Mercy.

Jenne Knost, president of the St. Joseph alumni group, organized the first king contest for the 1930 Mardi Gras. Reigning as the first King Christian was Bernard Knost, and his queen was Marie Bertrand.

Only wars have interrupted this long history of parades. Prior to the 1953 parade all parade entries had been drawn by mules or horses.

That year King Dr. Charles Taylor's horse became ill during the parade and was replaced by a tractor which soon became the newest addition to the parade taking the place of the traditional mule and horse.

Owen achieves National Board Certification

The National Board for Professional Teaching Standards (NBPTS) announced that 6,500 primary and secondary school teachers from 49 states and the District of Columbia have earned the highest professional credential in the field of teaching - National Board Certification - during the 2000-2001 school year.

The record number of new National Board Certified Teachers (NBCTs) brings the current total number of NBCTs to 16,035.

More than 16,000 candidates have applied to pursue National Board Certification during the 2001-2002 academic year - an increase of nearly 50 percent from this time a year ago.

Pamela Owen from Bay-Waveland Middle School is one of the teachers achieving National Board Certification.

Owen has received letters of congratulations from Gov. Ronnie Musgrove and U.S. Rep. Gene Taylor.

National Board Certification, a voluntary process established by NBPTS, is achieved through a rigorous performance-based assessment that takes almost a year to complete.

Through the assessment process, teachers document their subject matter knowledge; provide evidence that they know how to teach their subjects to students most effectively; and demonstrate their ability to manage and measure student learning.

"I am extremely proud of Mrs. Owen and every other teacher who was a candidate for National Board Certification this year," says NBPTS President Betty Castor.

"They have proven to themselves, their communities and their profession that they are among the most accomplished teachers in America.

"Quality teaching is fundamental to creating excellent schools and high achieving students. This is why the National Board for Professional Teaching Standards was created in the first place. We believe the heart of education reform rests directly with the teacher in the classroom."

Castor adds, "With this announcement, we believe we're on our way to reaching our goal of 100,000 National Board Certified Teachers by 2006."

Hancock Women's Club meets, donates to police department

Hancock Women's Club members gathered January 10 at the Holiday Inn, Waveland, for the monthly meeting and luncheon.

President Amelia Killeen welcomed new members Donna Schmidt, Janice Guinot and Gigi Sunseri into the group and prospective member Joyce DeBruyn.

It was announced the club had presented a check to the Bay St. Louis Police Department for the purchase of "safety vests" and an additional contribution to the Hancock County Food Pantry.

Plans to donate to charities within the county were made, and checks will be sent in the near future.

Celebrating birthdays this month were Dana Piazza, Joyce Keenan, Billie Jean Niver, who were presented a corsage by Mamie O'Quinn, Sunshine chairlady.

In February the group will hold a Valentine Raffle as a fund raiser with the lucky person receiving $100.

Election of officers was announced by Margie Thomson, and a vote will be taken this month. She also reminded members this is the 22nd anniversary of the club, and two charter members still remain in the group, Ann Whitworth and Margie.

Marian Rapp's name was drawn to receive a complimentary lunch at the next gathering. The meeting closed and lunch was enjoyed.

Compretta praises MDOT road plan

BY ED LEPOMA
Staff Writer

State Rep. J.P. Compretta of Bay St. Louis says he is pleased with a highway construction plan making its way through the current legislative session, which favors more road building in the three coastal counties.

Officials with the Mississippi Department of Transportation unveiled its "Vision 21 Program" and map to legislators last week. MDOT proposes to spend $3.6 billion over the next 20 years, and roads are assigned priority based on traffic congestion.

Compretta, who serves as chairman of the House

Transportation Committee, said the final draft of the legislation should be ready soon, then he can schedule a hearing on the spending plan.

"It's a pretty involved piece of legislation," said Compretta. "It's a step forward for us. I am pleased that the department has listened to our pleas that you have to base your priorities on the traffic counts and put the highways where they need to be," said Compretta.

Although the three coastal counties experienced phenomenal growth with the advent of gaming in 1992, the three coastal counties were virtually left out of a major state highway construction plan enacted in 1987 after local senators and representatives failed to support it.

Cost estimates for the various road projects are not yet available, but the Vision 21 plan calls for widening Lower Bay Road in Hancock County south of U.S. Hwy. 90 and for four-laning Hwy. 43 from Picayune to Interstate 10 south of Kiln. Another major project calls for spending an estimated $1.2 billion to improve U.S. Hwy. 49 to interstate standards from Gulfport all the way to Jackson.

Other projects call for construction of a east-Harrison connecting corridor from U.S. Hwy. 90 to I-10 and for constructing a U.S. 49 bypass from Lyman south to the state Port in Gulfport.

Plans also call for four-laning Mississippi 67 from Mississippi 15 to U.S. 49; four-laning Lorraine-Cowand Road to Mississippi 67; and four-laning Mississippi 57 from Moss Point to Vancleave in Jackson County. MDOT officials say the agency could pay for the road plan with $200 million a year that's already in the budget, but the department would also seek federal funds for some of the projects, such as the East Harrison Connector.

Coast Transit wants part of gasoline tax

BY ED LEPOMA
Staff Writer

The Coast Transit Authority might call on the state legislature for future operating money.

CTA Executive Director Reid Hopper mentioned the possibility this week in an address before the Gulfport Business Club, and later talked with the Echo.

Reid said the CTA is facing a $1.5 million cut in federal funding due to the growth in population taking place in the three coastal counties. He said the CTA no longer qualifies for some federal funds because there are now more than 200,000 people living in the area stretching from Pascagoula to Hancock County.

He said the federal government feels "if you have that many people, the local government can take care of the public transportation system on its own."

Reid said he has been calling on coast leaders to pass legislation that dedicates one cent of the fuel tax revenue for public transit. He estimates this would generate about $1.2 million annually.

Reid said the city of Biloxi and Harrison County supervisors have already passed resolutions endorsing the concept, and he planned to visit political leaders in Jackson and Hancock County, and hoped to win their support.

He said there might not be time to gain approval of the tax in the current regular session, but he would push for approval in any follow-up or special session.

For the current fiscal year, CTA is operating with a $4.5 million budget.

"We're okay through Sept. 30," said Reid. "But, we would need the tax in place for Oct. 1."

Currently, the CTA provides transit service to only the elderly and handicapped in Hancock County on a regular basis, but Reid said with additional support, regular public transit routes might be a possibility.

King -- Legacy

wavered from his belief that nonviolence should remain the central tactic for the civil rights movement.

How far has King's dream come? Four area teens think the dream has come a long way, though most agree that their view of racial equality may differ from their parents and grandparents.

That's a pretty normal occurrence, said Betty Davis, retired senior buyer for Vickers Inc., who moved here four years ago from Nebraska with her husband Tom, retired director of the Boys and Girls Clubs in Omaha.

"They did not go through the turbulence of the 1950's and 60's. They were not even born then," said Davis. "They did not see such things as the integration of lunch counters, and it is good that these kids have not had to be subjected to prejudices. Much of the history of these times is not in the history books, at least not in Nebraska."

Donna Holton agrees. "My entire family became members of the NAACP the moment they were born," said Holton. "But things have changed. The kids now are sheltered and don't know anything about the marches and the protests unless their parents pass along the knowledge."

Holton may be right. Hancock High School junior Sherrell Lee, who recently moved here from Slidell, said she had never heard of the NAACP and was not involved in any African-American groups in our area, though she would like to be.

Lee said she still spends a lot of time involved in activities at her church in Slidell, Northshore Full Gospel Baptist. She was chosen Youth of the Year in Slidell for her work in boys and girls clubs, mentoring younger students and raising money for the hungry.

She hopes to become a pediatrician. She does not feel her race will hinder her in her goals, Lee said. "Things have been pretty fair for me"

"People here have been very nice to me, but Kiln is very different," said Lee. "In Slidell I felt more accepted; here I feel more separated ... there doesn't seem to be many activities for African-American students, like a youth club.

"Many of the clubs here (at school) seem to have the same members in every club, and though people are not unfriendly, they don't seem to invite you to join in or have my view, 'the more the merrier'."

Honor students at Bay High Miguel Graves, Arrian White and Byron Taylor are all busy with work, extra curricular school activities, and in their churches. So busy, Graves and Taylor say, they have no time to be involved in NAACP activities. The students said they are not aware of many NAACP activities in the area. They said that they do not feel much racial tension in the community and feel that it is not a problem, though all did say that more communication between the races is needed.

"In the lunch room you still see a table of black students and a table of white students," said Graves.

None of the three think that being black will hinder their plans for the future.

"I don't think anyone should feel that way. No matter what color or gender you are, you can reach your goals and aspirations," said White.

"The way I look at it, no one can hold me back from what I want to do if I put the work into accomplishing my goals," said Taylor.

What does Martin Luther King Day mean to the students? "We should remember Dr. King on Monday, but we should try to be like him every day," said Graves.

SPORTS

Bay lets a Gator get away 70-67 in Wilbur B. Seymour Gymnasium

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II
Staff Writer

It was close. Oh, so close! The Bay High Tigers split a pair of games with the Gautier Gators in the facility formerly known as the Tiger Dome. On Monday, January 14, the Bay-Waveland School Board announced that the Tiger Dome was renamed the Wilbur B. Seymour Gymnasium in honor of the long-time educator and coach that recently passed away.

The Lady Tigers dominated the Lady Gators in their matchup claiming a 65-42 win. The victory leaves the Lady Tigers alone at the top of the Division 8 rankings with one division game to go before the division tournament. The Lady Tigers now sport a 17-6 overall record and an 8-1 mark in the division. The division tournament is scheduled to be held in Gautier on February 11-15.

The Lady Tigers rebounded from a slow first period start to put the machine in cruise control by the end of the third period. Bay High held a 41-23 advantage after three periods of play.

Sharmaine Rieux gave Bay High a little spark off the bench in the final period scoring 8 points and 2 assists. Rieux is the lone senior on the Bay High squad. LaMonica James played a huge game for the Lady Tigers leading the team in scoring with 13 points down low and grabbing six rebounds.

Bay High Lady Tiger head coach Debbie Triplett stated, "We played a good second half. We played our type of game in the third and fourth periods which is putting pressure on the other team with the press and pressure defense. We have to cause turnovers to help open up our running game. We were able to do that tonight. Sharmaine Rieux provided a spark for us off the bench in the fourth period while LaMonica James had one of her better games for us down low. Our bench players like Sara Gilmore, Crystal Skretching, Felicia Thomas, and Cajavis Clark really played solid basketball for us tonight and gave us the spark that we needed."

James led the team with 13 points followed by Carmen Labat with 12 points. Kendra Reed and Stephanie Reed each scored 10 points.

The boys game started out a little slow but really went into overdrive in the final period and a half. With Gautier leading by as much as 22 points in the game, the Tigers stormed back to come within three points with about a minute to play. However, Gautier was able to make a trip to the charity stripe to preserve the win. I'm sure that everyone has heard the line, "We didn't lose. We just ran out of time." The Wilbur B. Seymour Gymnasium sure echoed that at about 9:30pm.

Gautier jumped out to a 13-8 first period lead that was sparked by a 5-0 run to start the game. The Gators maintained the intensity in the second period and took a 31-25 lead into intermission.

Although it had not quite completely surfaced yet, one could see a fire building in the hearts of the Tigers with about 6:18 left in the third period behind the play of freshman Lorenzo Lewis and senior Leif Dasco. Lewis is a starter while Dasco sees the court on a limited basis.

Lewis made some key baskets down the stretch of the third period to keep the Gators from getting a stranglehold on the scoreboard. But, it was Dasco's heart that everyone saw on his sleeve and on the court.

Early in the fourth period, Dasco's scrambling for loose balls and back-to-back three-pointers cut the score to 58-47 with 5:51 left to play. Those two shots and a block by Lorenzo Lewis got the crowd to their feet. Lewis was so high on the block that the Bay High maintenance staff could have asked him to change the lights while he was up there. From that point on, Bay High made believers out of everyone in Seymour Gymnasium.

Lewis' three-pointer with 1:26 left to play pulled the Tigers to within three points 63-60. Zack Nichols blocked a Gator shot and nailed a three-pointer to keep the Tigers within three 68-65 with :29 left to play. It was a foul on the inbound pass that saved the Gators from becoming Tiger meat!

The Gators held on for the 70-67 win. Bay High's record fell to 8-13 overall and 3-8 in the division. Bay High head coach Danny Grieves commented, "We played hard and played good team basketball in the second half."

"I told the guys after the third period when we were down 19 points that I have seen stranger things happen. I also told them not to go back out there unless they believe that it could happen. I believed in them and I challenged them to believe. The spark that lit the flame was when Leif Dasco dove for the loose ball in front of the scorer's table. It was the spark that we needed and I told him that he inspired me just by watching him play. He made something happen. Lorenzo Lewis, a freshman, led the team in scoring tonight and made some pretty big buckets. Michael Simpkins had his best game. He is just now getting into basketball shape but still has some work to do. Zack Nichols, one of our best players, provided a spark for us in the fourth period even in foul trouble. It was a good team effort. We have to concentrate on putting together four periods of basketball."

Lorenzo Lewis scored 17 points in the game while Zack Nichols added 10 points. Leif Dasco tallied eight points.

The Bay High Tigers will be hosting the East Central Hornets in their final division game of the season on Tuesday, January 22. The Lady Tigers will be battling to hold on to the number one spot for the tournament while the boys team will be shooting for the fourth or fifth seed in the tourney.

Pass &amp; Hancock girls get first wins of season on soccer field

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II
Staff Writer

It's basketball, soccer, and hockey, oh my! Much has happened in the arena of sports in the last week.

High school basketball was busy on the hardwood while some soccer teams claimed their first wins of the season this past week. And, the Sea Wolves let one slip away in the Wolves Den.

On Tuesday, the Pass High Pirates, St. Stanislaus Rock-a-chaws, Our Lady Academy Crescents, and Bay High Lady Tigers all got wins on the hardwood. The Pass High Lady Pirates and the Hancock Lady Hawks each tallied their first wins of the season on the soccer field.

The Pass High Pirates split two games from the Gautier Gators in basketball. The boys team claimed a 74-53 division win over the Gators. Calvin Woods led five Pirates (18-4, 8-0) in double-digits with 17 points. Richard Dedeaux scored 14 points while Garland Stewart and Ruben Nichols each scored 13 points. Maurice Hardnett rounded out the top five with 11 points.

The Lady Pirates (8-12) fell victim to the Gators' chomp losing 47-31. Stephanie Bradley scored 10 points for the Lady Pirates.

OLA tallied a 67-37 win over Resurrection High School on Tuesday. The Crescents (5-15) were led by Margaret Magers with 17 points. Denira Dedeaux scored 15 points while Keith Puckett added 13 points. Ashton Johnson recorded a double-double for the Crescents scoring 12 points and pulling down 12 rebounds.

The St. Stanislaus Rock-a-chaws (17-4, 6-1) kept their winning ways going with a 47-34 win over the East Central Hornets. Darius Acker scored 13 points followed by Gabe Willis and Cheick Sanankoua with 12 and 10 points, respectively. Willis also added six rebounds, five steals, and four assists.

The Lady Tigers of Bay High defeated 5A power St. Martin 73-67 to improve their record to 16-6 overall. Stephanie Reed scored 21 points to lead Bay High. Sister and teammate Kendra Reed added 19 points followed by Carmen Labat with 15 points. Felicia Thomas chipped in 10 points for the Lady Tigers.

In high school soccer action, the Hancock Lady Hawks won their first game of the year with a 2-1 decision over Petal. Courtney Vincent and Kandace Boos each scored in the second half to give the Lady Hawks a 1-10 record on the season.

The Lady Pirates of Pass High also claimed their first win of the season on the soccer field with a 5-1 tally over the Stone County Lady Tomcats. Mindy Davis scored the hat trick plus one for the Lady Pirates. Christine Taylor added the other goal for Pass High. Their record now stands at 1-9 on the season.

SSC and OLA continued their hot streak in high school soccer on the Coast. St. Stanislaus improved to 15-2-1 on the season with a 12-0 shutout of cross-town rival Bay High. Kyle Lewis scored the hat trick plus one for the Rocks and Peter Doty tallied the hat trick in the win. Jake Johnson, Brennan Brooks, Jeffrey Hansell, Michael Kivlan, and Patrick Donohoe each scored for the Rocks in the win.

OLA blanked Forrest County AHS 9-0 and improved their record to 14-3-4 on the season. Emily Meyers scored the hat trick for OLA while Ashley Chrisman added two scores for the Crescents. Carol Harshbarger, Ellen Ladner, Lauren Goulet, and Rachel Cranford each scored once for the two-time defending state champions in Class 1A-2A-3A.

Beau Rivage set to 'Burn the Floor'

Beau Rivage announces the arrival of "Burn the Floor," the new production appearing in the 1,550-seat Beau Rivage Theatre Jan. 26 - March 31.

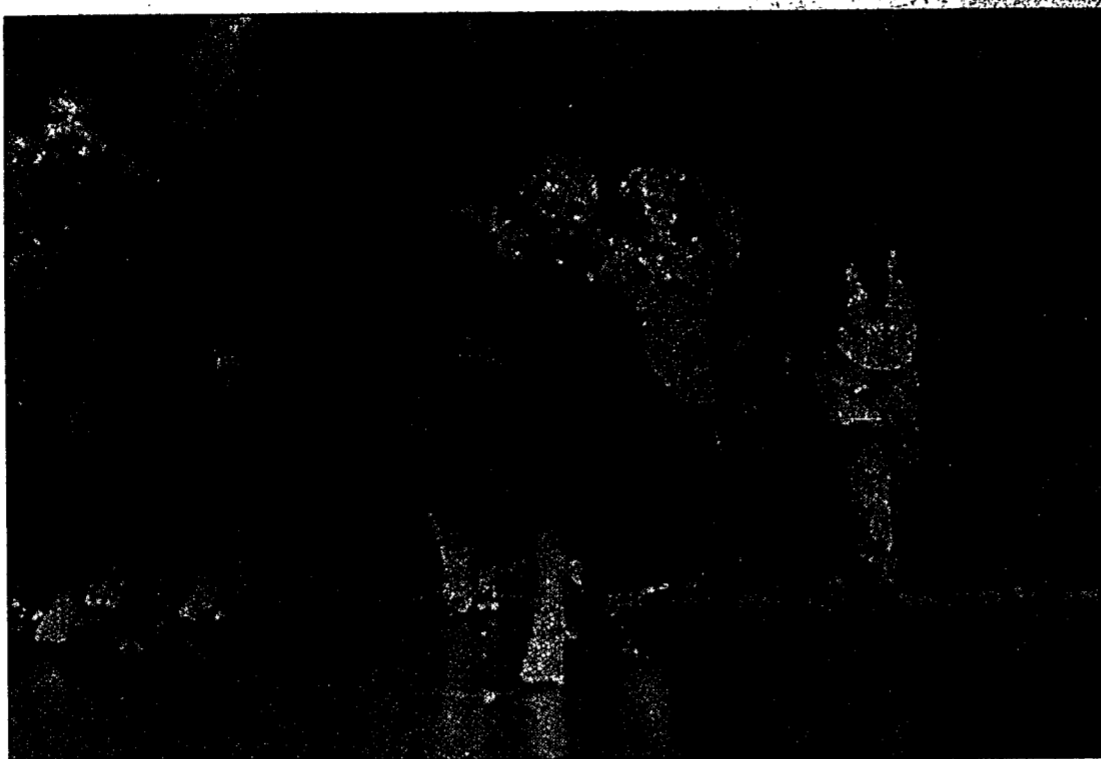

Originating in Australia, "Burn the Floor" is an international high-energy dance show featuring 22 championship dancers from 15 countries.

"Burn the Floor" transcends time, style, mood and genres. This unique theatrical performance is a fusion of the elegant sophistication of traditional dancing with the technology, creativity and sweaty sensuality of rock and roll.

Inspiration struck producer Harley Medcalf while attending Elton John's 50th birthday celebration. During the party, a group of internationally renowned ballroom dancers dazzled guests with an innovative, high-energy dance performance.

Through his vision and creativity a new dance form emerged that is both unique and timeless. "Burn the Floor" expresses emotions - the interplay and chemistry between a man and woman, the sheer joy of music and the excitement of dance.

It is a journey for the senses - a fiery feast of movement, a sizzling montage of sound and a luminous display of stage and lighting.

"Burn the Floor" is a very straight-forward show with great vitality," said Medcalf. "It is about dancing and rediscovering touching-partner dancing. It's a celebration of a lot of dance styles, the full range of dance and the human emotion expressed through dance."

The $10 million show features a young cast, most of which have dedicated their lives to dancing. "Burn the Floor" guests will be enthralled as they witness an evolution of traditional dance styles - waltz, samba, tango, cha cha - transformed into a blistering display of originality that jolts the world of ballroom dancing into the new millennium. ## Poet honored throughout the world

Would you believe that a poet is honored and remembered annually throughout the world?

That poet is Robert Burns, the Scottish Bard, whose life and works are the basis for the annual "Robert Burns Dinners" at the end of January each year by Scottish societies from North Carolina to New Zealand.

"Burns Night" is a traditional feast of food and drink, celebrating the birth of the Scottish poet, Robert Burns, on January 25, 1759.

Scots all over the world enjoy the festival in their own enthusiastic style. Burns Night celebrations traditionally revolve around the "haggis," an exclusively Scottish dish, served with mashed potatoes and turnips, "neeps."

In the ceremony, the haggis is paraded around the hall, accompanied by bagpipers and drummers in full Scottish regalia; kilts, sporrums, skeindhus, glen-garries, etc.

Robert Burns' poem "Ode to a Haggis" is recited as the haggis is sliced open.

The Scottish Society of the Gulf Coast will celebrate its 18th annual Burns Night at the Christ Victor Lutheran Church Parish Hall on Hwy. 90 in Ocean Springs at 7:30 p.m., Saturday, Jan. 26.

Bagpipers, led by Jack Lander of Moss Point, will provide appropriate music. Dinner by Broome's Catering Service of Ocean Springs will be enjoyed prior to the program honoring the great Scottish poet.

Tickets to the event are available from John Montgomery, president, (896-5510 or 863-6302) and from Terry Campbell, vice president, (896-8090) and from Lillian St. Amant, treasurer (388-4210) and from Joan Wilson, past president (875-2260). Tickets will be available only through Jan. 24.

Start planting for spring gardens

THE PACE FILES

BY STAN PACE
County Extension Agent

Are you trying to ward off the winter doldrums? If so, starting seeds for your spring garden may help.

Many plants can be started from seed now, grown indoors, and set out in a few months. Starting seeds now can help you get a jump-start on that spring garden and may even save you a little money.

Some good plants to start growing from seed include Gerbera Daisy, alyssum, coleus, dusty miller, geraniums, impatiens, marigolds, petunias, phlox, portulaca, salvia, vinca, verbena, sweet peas, popples, and larkspur.

To sow seeds indoors start with a soil-less medium in a shallow, well-draining container. Plant seeds in 2-inch rows or recommended spacing on the seed packet.

Place seeds in warm, sunny location and keep the media moist (not wet). Germination will depend on the plant; see the back of the seed packet for approximate days to germination.

Now is the time to talk to your local garden center, co-op, or department store about any particular color or type of flower or vegetable transplant you may want for spring.

They are in the process of placing orders with growers and can possibly get that salmon-colored verbena or white tomato in if you let them know.

February may be too late to arrange anything out of the ordinary.

Someone asked for my opinion on fertilizing warm-season lawns now. My response is simply: Don't do it!

The one exception is if you have overseeded the lawn with a cool-season species such as perennial ryegrass and the cool-season grass needs a boost.

Warm-season turf species are now dormant or nearly so. The only plants in the lawn benefiting from fertilization at this time will be the winter weeds present and we do not want to encourage rampant growth and seed production of these.

Warm-season turf species will not benefit from fertilization until they are actively growing. Applying lime to raise the soil pH (acidity) is a different matter however. If you have taken a soil sample and found that lime is recommended, then by all means get it out any time during the year.

Lime will decrease the soil acidity and make nutrients more available when needed as it generally takes months for lime to react and dramatically change the soil pH.

You can grow things for the table right now. Even as the sub-freezing temperatures limit growth outside, you can grow sprouts on the kitchen counter inside.

Everyone knows about bean sprouts (made from mug beans) and alfalfa, but

Cheer up, gardeners...

Bromeliads improve winter's grouchiest

SOUTHERN GARDENING

BY NORMAN WINTER
Horticulturist
Central Mississippi
Research & Extension
Center

This time of the year tends to make me a little grouchy, especially when I wake up to 16 degrees outside. My complaining makes gardeners from the north start tuning up for a chorus of "My Heart Bleeds for You." This season will make me love spring all the more, but when August comes, I will whine about the oppressive heat and humidity.

Those of you with greenhouses and bright sunrooms should rejoice while the rest of us who want pretty plants this time of the year are relegated to indoor types. There is a group of overlooked and misunderstood plants that we can all enjoy this time of the year and get a little taste of the tropics. They are bromeliads.

Strangely enough, there are bromeliads we are all familiar with such as the pineapple, the symbol of hospitality, and Spanish moss, which you are more likely to see growing in South Mississippi than pineapples.

Bromeliads come in a wide variety of bloom shapes, sizes and colors, and they really are easier to grow than many think. They are great plants for two main reasons: the showy foliage and the bloom that is really a group of bracts. Bracts are those modified leaves like poinset-

Some Neoregelias are terrestrial - drawing their nutrients from their roots; some are epiphytic - drawing nutrients through their leaves; most, however, require lower light. Almost all are grown for their exotically colored foliage.

Guzmanias, types of bromeliads, have long-lasting flowers and striking foliage, but they require less light than many of their relatives. Above, a guzmania with star-shaped blooms.

tias, bougainvillea, bird of paradise and dogwoods all have.

Many of the bromeliads sold are epiphytic, which simply means their roots are used for anchoring instead of for water and nutrient uptake. With these bromeliads, we keep the soil slightly moist. Most of these plants have leaves that form a natural cup, or urn, that is to be kept filled with fresh water.

Bromeliads that are not epiphytic are treated more like regular houseplants, so talk to your nurseryman about what you are buying. Most bromeliads sold around the state are native to the rainforest. Many of you probably worry about providing the right amount of light for the bromeliad.

A pretty good rule of thumb to remember is that the thicker, scaly leaves - many of which are grayish - come from areas with brighter light. Those scales protect them from the intense sun and also absorb water and nutrients. These bromeliads need the brightest area of the house. Those with shiny, glossy leaves come from the lower canopy or floor of the rainforest and can tolerate lower light conditions indoors.

There are thousands of bromeliads, but four of the easiest to grow and easiest to find are the Tillandsias, Vriesias, Guzmanias and Neoregelias.

Tillandsias are for the brighter indoor areas. Spanish moss is a popular southern Tillandsia. The more tropical Tillandsias are perfect for growing on an old piece of wood. They also are suitable for containers. My favorite is the Tillandsia cyanea which has a bloom the shape of a fish. Mist Tillandsias grown on tree trunks for their watering needs. My mom has this bromeliad growing for years on a piece of driftwood. The driftwood is on the windowsill facing east and without fail it blooms every year.

The Vriesia is another bromeliad for the brightest indoor areas. Keeping its cup filled with fresh water will give you a plant with a bloom that will last for weeks. It also has pretty foliage worth growing.

Guzmanias also have long-lasting flowers and striking foliage, but they require less light. I am partial to the ones with the star-shaped blooms. Some Neoregelias are terrestrial - drawing their nutrients from their roots; some are epiphytic - drawing nutrients through their leaves; most, however, require lower light. Almost all are grown for their exotically colored foliage.

Most bromeliads bloom only once, and the bloom lasts a long time.

Before the plant dies, it will form side shoots called pups that can be separated for starting new plants. It may take years for your particular species to bloom again. The bloom is so striking that it is worth the wait and the celebration when it happens.

There is a bromeliad that will work well somewhere in your home, and now is a good time to start shopping.

'Portrait of a Woman'

(Author's Note: I'm taking January off. The columns this month will be a set of "oldies but goodies.")

There is a 1958 movie, Houseboat, which has Sophia Loren making a wonderful remark on art to Cary Grant, "... it is better to have an excellent print than a poor original." It is good advice that Stella and I have tried to follow over the years.

Like many people, Stella and I like to collect pictures, both prints and originals. When we travel we usually look for pictures that take our fancy, buy them and bring them home.

Our problem is that while we like whatever picture we buy, that liking is disassociated with any idea of where it will hang when we get it home.

Thus we have many pictures in our closets facing the wall waiting for us to find a place to hang them. Some have been there a long time.

There was a period when we tried to establish a sort of rotating scheme to hanging the pictures.

We would hang a picture for a given length of time or season and then take it down and put up another picture in its place. Sounds like a good idea? Well, it didn't work.

Once we got a picture on the wall, only an earthquake would get us to take it down. I will admit they have been moved about, but essentially once a picture has acquired wall space, it always has wall space.

One thing about prints, even excellent prints, is that they have the limitations of having come off a press and thus may miss the intensity of the original piece of art.

This was brought home to me late one afternoon when I saw the original of a van Gogh painting, Wheatfield with Crows in the Rijksmuseum.

Views From a Front Porch

by Paul Estronza La Violette
laviolette@mail.datasync.com

For years I had what I considered an excellent copy hanging in my bedroom. After seeing the original, I was so stunned that I took the picture down and never rehanging it.

I had better luck with my copy of Mary Cassatt's The Bath.

Years ago there was a two-week exhibit of her paintings at the National Museum in Washington DC. After I got through with work late on a blowing snowy winter day, my nine-year-old daughter and I raced downtown to see it.

When we got there we found that the museum was closing and the guards at first refused to let us in.

However when they saw the look on Cathy's face, they relented. "There's no one here anyway on a day like this. The exhibit is in the basement and the painting you want is way at the end. Go on down there and we will come and get you

remember THE DREAM

JANUARY 21, 2002

Martin Luther King Day Quotes

The following selected quotations are from Martin Luther King's writings. They give the reader some spiritual understanding of the man which this national holiday of the United States of America celebrates. All quotes are from the online documents at the Martin Luther King Jr. Directory.

The Negro and the Constitution (in The Cornelian, May 1944)

"We cannot be truly Christian people so long as we flaunt the central teachings of Jesus: brotherly love and the Golden Rule."

"The spirit of Lincoln still lives; that spirit born of the teachings of the Negro, who promised mercy to the merciful, who lifted the lowly, who strengthened the weak, ate with publicans, and made the cap of the law the light of this divine example, the doctrines of democracy, the doctrine of the chaff."

"In my experience a new birth of freedom in her sons and daughters. She incarnates the spirit of her martyred chief. Their loyalty, their devotion renewed to the work He left unfinished. We are inspired anew in the hope that inspired by the example of Lincoln, armed with the spirit of Christ, they will cast down the barriers of prejudice and freedom. And I with my brother of blackest hue possess at last my rightful heritage and holding my head erect, I will stand side the Saxon--a Negro--and yet a man!"

Address at March on Washington for Jobs and Freedom (August 1963)

Now is the time to make justice a reality for all of God's children.

I have a dream that one day this nation will rise up and live out the true meaning of its creed - we hold these truths to be self-evident that all men are created equal.

This will be the day, this will be the day when all of God's children will be able to sing with new meaning "My country 'tis of thee, sweet land of liberty, of thee I sing Land where my fathers died, land of the Pilgrims' pride, from every mountainside, let freedom ring."

And when this happens, when we allow freedom to ring, when we let it ring from every tenement and every hamlet, from every state and every city, we will be able to speed up that day when all of God's children - black men and white men, Jews and Gentiles, Protestants and Catholics - will be able to join hands and sing in the words of the old Negro spiritual, "Free at last, free at last. Thank God Almighty, we are free at last."

Nobel Prize Acceptance Speech (December 1964)

I still believe that one day mankind will bow before the altars of God and be crowned triumphant over war and bloodshed, and non-violent redemptive goodwill will proclaim the rule of the land.

For these people will never make the headlines and their names will not appear in Who's Who. Yet when years have rolled past and when the blazing light of truth is focused on this marvelous age in which we live - men and women will know and children will be taught that we have a finer land, a better people, a more noble civilization because these humble children of God were willing to suffer for right and justice's sake.

Views -- Portrait

when we get everything shut down. It will be at least a half hour."

And so it was that Cathy and I had the magnificent experience of looking at this wonderful woman's works as if they had been hung for a private showing.

When we got to our painting, we were delighted to see that although our reproduction was much smaller, the colors and spirit of what we had at home were very much like the original.

I still have the copy and, although a little faded, it is still a delight to the eye. One doesn't have to have copies of pictures by the great masters.

The area where we live on Mississippi Coast is conducive to good art and our burgeoning local art scene is proof of this. All of us have excellent chances to buy originals and prints by extremely talented local artists for fairly inexpensive prices.

And so our walls, as well as those of many in town, are wonderfully enhanced by the efforts of Hammett, Blake-Edwards, Stamm, Bernstein and Anderson.

But there is an immediate point to what I am writing beyond talking about our interest in pictures.

Stella and I have known a local artist for some time and have liked her work enough to have several of her charcoals and an oil.

Her work is attractive, pleasant to look at and we enjoy the pieces of hers that we have. However, one large painting hanging in Serenity Gallery on Main Street in downtown Bay St.

Louis is different from what she has done before. Much, much different.

I happened by Serenity about a week ago and found the painting hanging in the back room usually reserved for shows.

I was shocked by the power her new work exuded. Basically, it is a portrait of a woman seated with what appears to be a Calvary sword in her lap with her hand resting on the hilt. But it is much more than that.

The emotions projected by the picture are tremendous. They are so strong that at first you don't realize the woman is really a petite person, not the large person you initially feel she is, the sword gives the scale to her true size.

However, the painting belies that, displaying in its intensity the true scale of her persona.

The play of the power projected by the painting is an graphic lesson on how paintings can evoke feelings in people much the same way as stirring words or music.

It would be interesting to hear the variety of feelings generated by different viewers. There's a "Second Saturday" this weekend, drop into Serenity and take a look.

Go by and see and ask them to show you the large Rigney painting of a woman and see if it impresses you like it has me. (Since I wrote this piece, Ms. Rigney's painting has been moved to the mid gallery of Serenity. The lighting is slightly different, but the painting is still striking.)

Pace -- seeds

broccoli, cauliflower, radish, mustard, and even onion and wheat sprouts can be easily grown and added to salads, soups and sandwiches.

Two very important factors must be observed. The first is to be sure seed has not, repeat not, been treated with a fungicide or insecticide.

The second is to keep the seed wet, but free from bacteria. Sprouts can be produced in an old mayonnaise jar (or any other large clear jar) by sterilizing the jar in a boiling water bath; allowing the jar to cool; then placing pre-soaked seed in the jar and covering the mouth with nylon or plastic mesh held on with a rubber band.

The jar needs to be drained and water replaced three times a day until harvest to provide even moisture. There are sprouting kits, which eliminate the daily chores and grow better-looking sprouts. Harvest is in three to 10 days.

REFLECTIONS ON LIFE

By Father Jerome LeDoux, SVD

The world is getting old

Of the 6 billion-plus current inhabitants of our planet, how many would you guess are 65 or older?

One of the most interesting aspects of this query is that the question had simply not occurred to me until now.

It had never crossed my mind how young or how old the world population is.

If anyone had asked me how many people over 65 there are in the world, I would have had no clue.

Upon reading that the Census Bureau and the National Institute on Aging counted 420 million in 2000, up from 131 million in 1950, I was still taken aback. Somehow, I thought there should be more.

On second thought, however, not many decades ago, life expectancy in many Third World countries was unbelievably low. One could scan the World Almanac and casually spy such pitiable figures such as 41, and occasionally lower, noting the average age of life expectancy for an entire nation.

Even today, scanning the vital numbers table in the latest World Book encyclopedia, one still sees a considerable number of countries with a life expectancy figure beneath 50 years.

However, the trend toward older age levels is in evidence everywhere, even in most of the poorest countries.

Many circumstances around the globe are contributing to the uptick in years of longer life for individuals.

Beginning at the bottom, the infant mortality rate is down sharply because of improved sanitary and medical conditions, better nutrition, and better overall care of babies and children.

Womb-to-tomb care became a buzzword a few decades ago, and now the buzz is giving way to reality, as everyone from insurance companies to Health Medical Organizations of every description eagerly embrace the megabuck industries sprouting around our frenzied journey of life and death.

In the midst of all this, the physical quality of life is steadily improving for most of our globe's dwellers, although we know of numerous glaring exceptions in the Sub-Sahara of Africa and other sites in scattered regions of the world, where poverty, starvation and disease stalk their victims daily.

Quantum leaps in agricultural hybrids, methods and techniques have proved to be a "boon to poorer nations, except in desert-blasted areas where rain does not come every year and in some cases only once in several years.

More grains and other foods have allowed the world population to explode.

Unfortunately, some of the contributing factors for the rapid greying of the world's population are tragic.

Take the fact, for instance, that one and a half million children are missing from the world count each year because they were snuffed out by abortion before getting a shot at the world stage.

This has been going on ever since the U.S. Supreme Court's Roe v. Wade decision in 1973, declaring that, except under certain conditions, states may not prohibit a woman's right to have an abortion during the first six months of pregnancy. That ruling alone has erased well over 40 million babies.

More brutal and more extensive forms of the same butcher-block barbarism have been practiced for years in overpopulated countries,

China in particular. In a number of these countries, girl babies are looked upon as a liability and therefore the first to be exterminated.

So, as the peoples of the world walk or drive past us each day, one out of every 15 of them is 65 or older.

How the other age categories break down is not clear, except we are sure that the youngest level beginning with babies is being pinched off artificially through barbarous, murderous practices.

While that latter reason is an immoral, heinous one for the spike in the aging of the world, at least most other reasons are decent because of better nutrition, better medical care, and safer working and living conditions.

Willy-nilly, all nations and peoples are being drawn irresistibly closer to the Biblical allotment of life afforded us through God's mercy:

"The sum of our years is 70, and, if we are strong, 80" (Psalms 9).

Caught up in the primary rat race for survival, and in the secondary rat race for bettering their lives, the world's peoples have to take special precautions not be consumed by the material aspects of their quest.

After all, the main trust of believers is not longevity with attendant luxuries.

Despite the catchy flavor of Psalm 90 and its blessings of age, quality, not quantity, of life is first, second, middle and last in our pursuit of happiness.

Jesus, who was murdered at the tender age of 33, sought only quality: "I came that they might have life, and have it to the full" (John 10:10).

What is 'The purpose of life' Scripture Says ...

BY ED YOUNG

What's your purpose in life? What should be your purpose in this life? My, how we have lost sight of our real meaning and purpose of being here. The world system has programmed us into a method of thinking that material wealth and all that goes with it is really living.

The argument that seems justified is - "Well, I'm a good homemaker, and I'm raising my family in a good school, and we go to church every week" - and that's certainly commendable.

Then there's the reasoning the "breadwinner" can say to himself or herself, "Am I not fulfilling a much-needed necessity to provide for my family?"

The medical profession, law enforcement, sound government officials all have a wonderful purpose in knowing they are helping mankind.

The world-wide programs that are feeding and clothing the needy surely are doing what the Bible says to do.

However, all of the above things mentioned - is not our real purpose in this life. God created man so that His creation would have personal fellowship with him.

To realize this, one must be born again. Born from above, a spiritual awakening, to become alive in Christ. (John 3: 3-7)

How is this possible? Only God can make this happen, but God won't make it happen unless you want to have fellowship with Him.

It's up to you.

The "Word" for the Week 'What is faith?'

Dennis J. Prutow • Box 303, Sterling, KS 67579

Your beliefs may differ, but one inalienable fact is true

We all believe many things. Some people believe the theory of evolution. When a couple exchanges marriage vows, they believe their new spouse will keep those vows.

We could multiply examples. But I am interested in religious faith. More specifically, I am interested in Christian faith. And the question is, 'What is faith, according to the Bible?'

First there is an intellectual part to faith, your mind is involved. You come to grips with the truth of the Bible with your mind.

You understand you are a sinner and that Christ died on the cross for sinners. Like many people, you understand this truth.

Many people reject this truth too. But the point is, simple belief in what the Bible says is only the beginning of faith. It is only the first step.

You may take the position that you cannot understand the bare facts about Christ without being born again.

Now I believe the new birth does come before faith in Christ. Jesus Himself said a person cannot enter the kingdom of God unless he is first born again (John 3:3 and 5).

But I am saying that you can understand the facts of the Gospel. You can understand that you are a sinner. You can understand that Christ died for sinners.

You can believe this teaching of the Bible. But this is no sign you are born again.

Mere belief in what the Bible says is only the beginning of faith. "The demons also believe, and shudder" (James 2:19).

God forbid that you or I should only have the faith of devils. Such faith certainly does not gain access to heaven.

You and I must not only believe what the Bible says, we must agree with it and we must then trust in Jesus Christ as our Saviour from sin.
